CANAL FULTON'S OPPORTUNITY. A Creamery and a Pickling Concern Looking That Way.

Mr. B. F. Otis, proprietor and owner of three large creameries and a whole sale dealer in butter, eggs and cheese, of Pittsburg, Pa., visited Canal Fulton last week for the purpose of starting a creamery plant. He means business and is ready to start, providing he can secure a cooperation of the farmers. Mr. Ous $2,000,000. The first year's business of will have a representative there during the company amounted to $15,430 while the street fair to confer with the business men and farmers relative to the subject, and should be meet with sufficient encouragement to come, Canal Pulton, within one year, will see one of the biggest creamery establishments operated in Northern Ohio. This is not the only opportunity Fulton has of bettering her condition. A large wholesale dealer in Pittsburg desires to establish a pickling factory there and wants the product produced from 500 acres of land. If these two industries could be secured for Canal Fulton, prosperous times would be ushered in, the like of which has never been experienced in the town's history. Miners Return to Work on a Compromise Basis.

END OF A STORMY CONVENTION.

After a Session of Four Days the Miners' Convention Adjourns-They Accept 65 Cents in Pittsburg or 56 Cents in Ohio-New Dead Work Scale for Massillon.

After spirited debate, continuing four days, the miners' convention at Columbus adjourned Saturday night, after having voted to resume work at 65 cents tee on resolutions, William Warner. in Pittsburg and 56 cents in Ohio. The new scale will not become operative until ten days, so that all districts may Warner's surprise when the resolution come in, and after that the miners at work will contribute to the support of those still on strike.

At the meeting of the operators of the Massillon district held in Cleveland on Tuesday afternoon, operators J. F. Pocock, J. P. Burton and R. H. Wainwright, of Massillon, were appointed as a committee and empowered to arrange a scale for dead work under the new mining rate.

The committee, at a meeting held in the office of J. F. Pocock on Wednesday prepared the following scale which will be poste i at all Massillon district mines. The new scale is a proportionate increase over the scale last in effect on the basis of the new mining rate:

Schedule of rates for dead work adopted by the Massillon operators at Cleveland, O., September 7, 1897, to take effect at the Massillon mines. September 8, 1897;

Mining rate per net ton... Entry per yard, single shift ..... 1 57 Entry per yard, double shift ....... 1 77 Breakthros per yard between entries, 1/27 Breakthros per yard between rooms. . Turning rooms ..... Roadmen per day ..... Miners, inside labor, per day ...... Drivers, per day .... Cagers, perday..... Carcouplers, per day.... ......... Engineers, per day .... ... ............ Fireman, per day..... Pumpers' boy.. .... 1 00 Pump tenders..... Blacksmiths. . . .... Trimmer..... 1 40 Dumpers Outside labor..... 1 20 Dirt shovelers..... Trapp-r-Mining run of mine, % price of lump.

Powder..... 1 50 011 ...... 50 room

At the above rates per day each individual using oil shall furnish it himself. For dirt coming down unavoidably over the coal, when over six inches, five cents per ton for every six inches.

Lifting bottom or ripping top, for roadways, five cents per inch per yard. Horsebacks to be paid for as mutually agreed upon between miners and bosses.

Water: Operators to take water out, or igree with miner as to price. Wide entry, above three yards in width, to be fixed by special contract between miners and bosses.

Wet entry, prices to be agreed upon by bosses and entrymen.

M'BRIDE AND RATCHFORD. A Charge that the Former is Playing a Political Game,

It is charged that the delay in settling the miners' strike is directly attributawho is bitterly against President Ratche dispatches from Columbus to be "runconvention and has since been assidu- are fully made known, some of the leadously looking after the operator's political interests, especially as related to "the great cause of labor." The whole scheme, as related, seems to have been inspired by the fear that if the 65-cent rate is accepted. Mark Hanna might get some credit for suggesting an larranging the compromise. It is also alleged, so an informant of The INDE-PENDENT states, that Mr. McBride has been manipulating matters in the Massillon district against Mr. Ratchford, and inspired the local action autagonistic to settlement, securing as his allies Messrs, Mossop, Adly and Parks, all of whom have been arrayed in the past against Mr. Ratchford's organization. The correspondent of the Pittsburg The board of education held its reg-Press goes on to say:

"For several days rumors have been affoat that the Hanna people were lining up in readiness to credit the senator with the successful termination of the strike with a substantial victory for the miners. These rumors have been a well defacts and figures concerning the crowded fined cause of worry to the Chapman condition of the high school, showing people, and now it is intimated that they the attendance to be 155, more than can have determined to avert an adjustment be comfortably seated, and too many for upon the terms proposed, which by the way came from T. E. Young, Hanna's agent. And it is a peculiar but undeniable fact that the settlement has been fought on the floor of the convention by those very delegates who with great fre quency have dropped into the Lodge, the McBride saloon, to talk over the sit nation with the ex-leader, and the sole and entire burden of the objection arged be these same delegates is that the com promise will break up the union.

"But this is of rather small signifi-statement from a Pittsburg delegate that John McBride privately protested to him and few of his colleagues against compromise because of the certain destruction it would invite on the union. Besides it is known that John McBride is bitterly opposed to President Ratchford and the other miners' officials on personal as well as political grounds. Associated with McBride in opposition to the settlement and in his feeling against it is T. L. Lewis, of the Ohio state organization. His position has already been outlined in the press. Lewis, it is charged, has been made the agent, whether consciously or unconsciously is not stated, to carry out McBride's de-

"It is necessary to go back a step in the story at this point. It was stated in the press yesterday that the commitchairman, had adopted a resolution calling for a settlement at 65 cents. To was read late last evening in the convention it was totally different from that which the committee adopted.

"Warner traced it down this morning. He found that Wednesday night, after the committee had completed its workl Lewis met Secretary Bolt, and asked for the original copy of the committee's rec ommendation to the convention. When it was shown. Lewis objected, and drawing his pencil through the lines that did not suit him, inserted his own opinions. which, as stated above, would render a settlement at 65 cents impossible. The whole story will be told in the convention today, and a sensational time is expected. It is further stated that John Mc-Bride is circulating among the delegates, telling them that all trade unions expected them to fight for 69 cents to the bitter end. M. P. Carrick, M. M. Garland, M. J. Carnahan, L. R. Thomas and other national labor leaders of Pittsburg. when asked for an opinion by wire, flashed back the message that the miners had been offered an advance of 20 per cent., and labor expected them to adopt the sensible course and accept it."

PRICE OF COAL IN CLEVELAND.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11.—The uncertainty hovering over the coal situation made it difficult to obtain quotations of prices yesterday. On run of mine steam coal they varied from $2.10 to $2.35 a ton. It was said that in the event the miners accept the proposition of the operators the price of the coal would be from $1.45 to $1.60-an advance of about 15 cents per too over the old quotations, to correspond with the increase in the mining rate.

MASSILLON'S DELECATES. Their Conduct as Viewed by Columbus

the miners' convention was the publication here of charges that John McBride was at the hottom of the delay in bringing about a settlement, partly because the settlement might reflect favorably upon M. A. Hanna, and against H. L. Chapman, who is McBride's nominee for governor, and partly because of Mr. Mc-Bride's antagonism to President Ratchford. It is currently believed that the Massilion district delegates, Parks, Mossop and Adley, are in McBride's confidence, and are helping to pull his political chestnuts out of the fire. The friends of Mr. Ratchford declare that until recently the three Massillon delegates have been in violent opposition to Ratchford and maintained an independent organization. When they heard of the probable compromise settlement they got up a mass meeting and, suddenly changing front, decided to re-enter the United Mare Workers, but not until they ble to the influence of John McBride, themselves were made delegates and had so manipulated matters as to be inford, and has been ever since Mr. Ratch-structed to vote against Ratchford's ford exposed. There will be no crop bulletin for Ohio this month, although the state authorities do venture to put the 1897 wheat crop at 40,000,000 bushels. It may run past week, and no court or any other over that. If held long enough, it will other representative or agency of the law be worth as many dollars to the Ohio farmers. Only six times in the history of the state has the crop reached 40,-000,000 bushels. Out in Kansas City the average daily shipment of money from the banks to farmers in Missouri, Kansas and Colorado, the most of which has been used in moving grain, is $745,000. This is the farmers' golden year, and when the farmers prosper the rest of the world does also.

About a year ago. The Independent suggested to such of the workingmen of Massillon as are organized in unions the advisability of building and equipping a club house. That such an institution could be crected and maintained at a very slight per capita expense is quite certain and proof of this assertion may be obtained at Yonkers, N. Y. The Yonkers workingmen's club house will contain a well-stocked reading room and a fine library, together with a gymnasium, smoking and lunch rooms, lavatories, bath rooms, bowling alleys, billiards and pool tables and an auditorium. The building is a gift of a rich man, but there is nothing to prevent concerted effort everywhere, which could result in the same thing.

There seems to be no valid reason why the publisher of the new paper in Alliance who, temporarily forbidden to name his paper "The Leader," should persist in claiming the right to use that name. There are a thousand names available, and Mr. Wadsworth, for whom THE INDEPENDENT has only good wishes, with any one of them. It appears to be true that the Review, having obtained the old Alliance Leader by purchase, incorporated its title with its own. Thereafter the Review sold the weekly Leader to Mr. Wadsworth, retaining the name and good will of the old daily Leader for itself. Inasmuch as the Review had been calling itself, the Review and Daily. Leader for a long time preceding Mr. Wadsworth's advent, and had obtained it by purchase, there seems to be an element of unfairness in the attitude of the newcomer, who has been temporarily enjoined from baptizing his venture the TILLMAN AND THE TALLY-HO-

Such an equipage as that | Umited States. is a disgrace to our free land. It is the vehicle to carry the rich, the slave drivers of our land." Then the statesman climbed into the disgrace and had a ride around Rochester. That is precisely the sort of man every Anarchist is. He shricks at good things until he gets them, and if nobody gives them to him he keeps on shricking. And the incident shows how much sincerity, there is in a great deal of this silver campaigning.--Brooklyn Eagle.

OPINIONS OF DEBS.

All of the leading papers of the country are taking a shot at the extravagant and impossible Debs. The Chicago Times Herald says:

"Within two months the world has seen how eager the American people are to vindicate liberty of speech, and how quick to denounce license. President Andrews's opinions are not the opinions of the majority of the people, but his right to express them in sober language was defended on all sides, by gold standard men and newspapers with quite as much vigor as by the advocates of free coinage of silver. On the other hand, Debs's hysterical rayings have met with stern reprobation from men of all parties while the Farmers Congress represented The defenders of Andrews are the most determined opponents of Debs."

The Cleveland Plain Dealer declared that the St. Louis conference. "was damaged in the estimation of thinking labor by the prominence permitted to Eugene V. Debs." The New York Sun calls him "the sublime Debs" and adds:

Lyman Walrath, a 16-year-old boy who came to Massillon from Cleveland with his mother not long ago, and after a day or two spent among the boats at the Canal street dock announced that the life of a sailor was the only life for him, has left for parts unknown.

His mother used to plainly show her disapproval when he talked of following the canal, and she thinks that he has run away from home to join the crew of one of the boats that have passed through Massillon lately. Mrs. Walrath went to Canton yesterday, thinking he might be in hiding over there for the present, but failed to find a trace of him.

Wheat has risen 5 cents the past

Though reports of the crop, now almost wholly out of danger, indicate a yield never surpassed but once, foreign accounts will strengthen the belief that the deficiency abroad will be about 100,000,000 bushels more than usual, and, meanwhile, reports indicate that less corn than was expected will be available for export. Those who have been seeking gold must now seek food or starve.

While there may be a tendency to exaggerate the actual condition of affairs there can be no question that famine threatens the adventurous men and women who made their way to the Kloudyke. Hundreds of unruly spirits are flocking to Dawson. Threats of violence are being made on every side.

There are uttered threats of vengeance by those held at St. Michaels. who have little hopes of advancing up the river and less of getting back to civilization.

The first signs of winter are apparent on the river rukon, which is beginning to freeze and in a few weeks will be closed. Enormous prices are now being paid for food at Dawson, and it is impossible that more than four vessels with provisions can reach Dawson before the river is a mass of ice.

Even dire distress threatens those compelled to stay at St. Michaels Many are living in tents.

On the Cleveland there are 38 passen gers, men, women and children, who have come from Dawson City. There are few miners in this party that are able to tell of prosperity. Most of them wish to exaggerate their possessions and if one were to believe the stories they tell, he would say that the treasure ship in which they have come carries $5,000,000. Captain Hall, master of the Cleveland, says that he has $100,000 in his safe. The purser believes that he can account for ;150,000 on board. Shortly before the Cleveland left St.

Michaels two of the expeditions, those of the National City and of the South coast, held indignation meetings, threatening dire vengeance upon those who had brought them there and were unable to carry them further. The Cleveland also brings news that when the Humboldt stopped at Unalabia on her journey to St. Michaels the passengers were in open rebellion. They began to realize that it would be impossible for them to reach Dawson before next spring, and they knew misery awaited them at St. Michaels. There were open threats against W. D. Woods, the organizer and manager of the expedition, and it is feared that he may lose his life at the hands of his Four Thousand Men on Strike.

CARRIED OFF TRISH BETRESSES,

Abduction Clubs Flourished In

Scions of Impoverished Houses Banded Together to Secare Rich Wives The Famous Case of Byrne and Strange and the Rennedy Carls.

Abduction clubs have varished from reland for many a lor g day, but there is pardly a noble or south tamily in the Green Isle which cannot point to one or with those extraordinary associations. The express object of the all duction clubs was the forcible carrying off of rich heiresses and their marriage under duress to husbands el osen trem their eartors. During the eighteenth century, whon progract ed wars and penal persecution has impov erished many old and honored houses, Ireland became overrun with the class known as "squircens"-younger sons or brothers of landholding gentry, who were for the most part very poorly endowed with the world's goods. These young fellows, of course, rarely condescended to take up any profession or avocation by which they could earn an honest livelihood, but preforred to remain under the ancestral rooftree, drinking the reigning relative's claret and riding his horses. Now these "sunircens," being for the most part lads of spirit, were not long content to remain in barmless idleness, but set about many schemes for the procuring of funds without much labor, and of all these schemes the carrying off of beiresses proved the most popular. At first the fair inheritors were not abducted against their wills, but so desperate and so dating grew the "squireens" that very soon they did not even stop to ask the lady's consent before running away with her. A direct outcome of this state of affairs was the first abduciway with whatsoever girls they pleased. In 1773 two young ladies in see their appearance upon the Irish social borizon who combined in themselves the rare attributes of considerable wouldboard great beauty. They were Katherine and Anne Kennedy, daughters of a County Waterford squire of large estate. A meeting of the south Leinster abduction club was called and lots were drawn for the hoiresses. The lucky (or, as it afterward proved, hidcously unlucky) members were Licutenant James Strange, brother to the baron of Dunkist and collateral ancestor of the present Lord Bellew, and Mr. Gerald Byrne, cousin of the Earl of Ormonde. Both were 25 years of age, and neither had laid eyes upon the young ladies who had fallen to them by let.

The abduction clubs had spies in every parish, and it was soon ascertained that on a certain day the Misses Konnedy would drive from Lord Desart's country place, where they had been staying, to attend a performance in Kilkenny given by the famous Samuel Foote. A meeting of the conspirators was held in Kilkenny, and on the appointed day the approaches to the theater were guarded by over 100 gentlemen armed with swords and by twice that number of peasants with shillalahs. As the ladies left the theater they were escorted by their cousin, Mr. Loughman, Sir Charles Cuffo and Colonel Helsham. They were in the act of stepping into a coach when four gentlemen with vizards over their faces attacked them. Colonel Heisham and Mr. Loughman instantly drew their swords, but the first named gentleman was struck down with a shillalah, while Mr. Loughman fell pierced through the shoulder with a rapier. Sir Charles Cuffe attempted 1) seize the girls, but the mob swarmed down upon him, and he was finally stunned by a blow from the butt end of a pistol. Then the Kennedys were carried rapidly to the other end of the Parade, a fashionable street, where two ceaches, each with four horses and postilions, were in waiting. "Crack went the whips, round went the wheels." and away went the unfortunate heiresses, one in each coach, and guarded carefully.

tion club, started in the counties of Kilkenny and Carlow about the year 1750. Kilkenny was then a close rival to Dublin for the social supremacy of Ireland. Very many noblemon and gentlemen had their town houses in the ancient city on the Nore, and the Kilkenny theaters had an international reputation. It was natural, therefore, that the first abduction club should spring up with this lively town as its base of operations. During the ten years succeeding 1750 over 80 heiresses and a number of young ladies "with prospects" or possessed of some fortune were deliberately carried off while attending balls, parties or the theaters. In the club was enrolled every younger son of good family in southern Leinster. The members were bound together by oaths of the most terrible nature, and every member was pledged to help every other member with hand, heart and pocket.' The medus operandi of the club was simple enough. When an heiress appeared on the tapis, all members who desired to become candidates for her hand and fortune entered their names in a book. Then a series of numbers were written on specially prepared slips of paper. These slips were shaken up in an urn, and in order of seniority the members drew lots for their unconscious victim. The person drawing the highest number was pronounced victor, and immediately the club went into executive session to determine the best means, time and place for the lady's ab duction. If the capture proved successful and the abducted heiress accepted her lot. the lucky bridegroom, in severing his connection with the club, formally presented his old associates with a handsome hon orarium from his wife's fortune. Things grew so bad that from 1755 to 1770 no young lady of fortune dared to travel far from home without a large armed escort to protect her from attack. At last, the government, resolved to stand such a state of affairs no longer. Proclamations were issued by the lord lieutenant and privy council announcing that any further lawbreaking on the part of the abduction clubs would be punished to the full extent of the law despite the position and connections of the abductors. At the same time abduction was made a capital offense, punishable with death.

But the "squireens" were not frightened or deterred by these threats and warnings.

the shooting lodge of a Mr. B--, Strange's consin, in the Castlecomer hills. Here the young ladies were allowed to nlight. Two peasant girls in the pay of the abduction club were assigned to them as maids, and during the night their own half brother, who, curiously, was a member of the club and bound by its oaths, introduced Byrne and Strange and informed his sisters that they must marry those daring swains.

Katherine Kennedy was of a gentle, timorous nature and soon consented to wed Byrne, who, indeed, she seemed to like very much. But Anne Kennedy held out resolutely, and only the threat of being imprisoned in the darksome depths of one of the neighboring coal mines caused her to give way. Eventually a clergyman, real or mock, made his appearance, and the weeping girls were forced at the pistol point into matrimony. Then the madcap flight was continued with fresh horses across the hills Toward morning the coast of Wexford was reached, and the entire party embarked on a fishing smack with the intention of making for France.

But in the meantime a courier had reached Dublin, and the lord lieutenant was moving heaven and earth to capture the abductors. A fleet sloop of war put out of Dublin bay and speddown the Irish sea. An unfortunate delay on the part of the abdustors' skipper gave the pursuing vessel its opportunity, and in midchannel the fishing smack was overhauled. Byrne, Strange and their servants were all captured.

Katherine Kennedy positively refused to give evidence against Byrne, but the other sister, whose affections Strange had not succeeded in gaining, went on the witness stand and swore her husband's life away. Both the young men were found guilty and sentenced to death.

Then began an earnest struggle to save Byrne and Strange. The machinery and influence of the abduction associations were set in motion. Every available string was pulled. Petitions for elemency poured in upon the lord lieutenant from every quarter, the Prince of Wales (afterward George IV) being one of the intercessors. But the government proved adamantine in its firmness. It was felt that an example must be made, or that the abduction clubs and their evil deeds could never be suppressed. Accordingly the sentence was executed, and from that day forth abduction clubs ceased to exist. to fresh variable winds, becoming So long had they enjoyed immunity that has this note from Packard Brothers. Roslindale, Boston, dated September 5. "You are to be congratulated in securing the finest background we had on display at the late Ohio state photographers convention. It has gone forward, carefully boxed, and we trust will arrive safely. You will be justified in advertising the fact of your purchase among your patrons, as it goes without saying, that this beautiful example of scenic art will largely contribute to the effectiveness of your work."

GOT THE JOB.

An Office Boy Who Didn't Smoke Cigarettes Was Wanted, and Every Applicant's Fingers Were Closely Examined. But the Man of Affairs Was Outwitted.

A prosperous man of affairs who has his offices in a down town skyscraping structure entered the building the other day with a disturbed look on his face. Although a man with full confidence in himself and one whose judgment was considered second to no one else's in the street, he was extremely doubtful of the result of the task before him. He was in trouble because his office boy had left him and he was forced to engage another. The boy who had gone had been a pretty good one as boys go. He had bossed the boss and run the office for about a year and was all right when he had his own way, but one unfortunate afternoon he told the boss that he wanted to get off, as his brother-in-law had died and he desired to go to the funeral. "I want to go to the ball game myself," said the "old man," chuckling, as he recalled how many times that old funeral excuse had been sprung on him by office boys, "so I guess, James, you will have to mind shop today. James didn't appear at the office next morning, but an irate woman who said she was his mother did, and she soundly berated the employer for his inhumanity in keeping James away from his brother-in-law's funeral. The boss tried to explain matters by saving that he thought James only wanted an excuse to go to the ball game and that he did not know there had been a death in the family, but it was no good. The whole family branded the old man as a brute of the deepest dye, and James did not return to his duties

In consequence of this the employer inserted an advertisement in one of the newspapers for an office boy, and he had got down to the office half an hour carlier than usual to receive the appli cants for the place. There was a long line of them in the hallway in front of his office, and he heard much criticism, some favorable and some otherwise, on his general appearance as be pushed his way through the throng. He called the boys into his office one by one and subjected each of them to a scarching examination as to his experience, fitness, etc. He invariably finished up with the question, "Do you smoke eigarettes?" The boys as invariably declared that they did not.

"Never smoked one o' ther dope sticks in me life," declared the first boy called into the office.

"Didn't, ch?" replied the "old man." 'Let me see your fingers." The youngster's fingers were stained a deep dirty yellow color, and he was told he was not wanted. "Dat's not cigarute stain, dat ain't," insisted the second boy called into the office. "Dat's paint off me fader's The excuse wouldn't work, however, more young aspirants for office honors. Finally a bright eyed, redheaded youngster entered the office and answered all the questions propounded to him in a satisfactory way.

"Now, my boy," came the final test, "tell me truthfully, do you smoke cigarottes?"

"What's them? Those little paper ci gars?" answered the youth.

"Yes, exactly." "Nope. Never drew one of them inter me lungs in me life," continued the "Let me see your hands."

The boy poked out a chubby fist at him. The man examined it critically, but failed to detect the slightest evidence of tobacco stain.

"You're engaged," he finally said. "Bully fer youl" replied the youth. 'So long. I'll be ter work in de morning." He then went out, whistling "There's Only One Girl In the World For Me," and joined his anxious comrades in the hallway.

"Youse fellers can all go home," he "What's yer given us? Did yer get der job?" piped half a dozen voices. "Bet yer life," replied the urchin.

There was a loud murmur of surprise from the crowd, and finally one of the youngsters exclaimed: "How'd yer do it, Chimmy? De old man said dat he didn't want no cope stick smokers, an yer knows yer was de wursest dope fiend in der push." "Oh, youse fellers was so slow dat yer make mo tired," replied Chimmie in a disgusted tone of voice. "Course I hit de dope sticks, but d'ye t'ink I wusn't cute 'nough ter keep it from de ole man?" "Guess yer had a pull or yer couldn't have fooled his joblots," said one of the youngsters. "Easiest t'ing in de world," answered Chimmy. "As soon as I read his advertisement in de poiper. I knew dat he wus ag'in dope sticks, so what does I do but soak me fingers in turpentine all night, an in de morning dey wus us clean as a newborn babe's."-New York Tribune.
